If I walk in the pathway of duty

“ Ms. Smith was my 4th grade teacher at Orangebrook Elementary many years ago. With the exception of my mother, never have I had a teacher who held me to such a high degree of education and dignity. I still remember her recollections of Mary McLeod Bethune to this day. She planted a seed of Black excellence within me, and challenged the complacency within me to strive for that excellence. She was strict, and never lax in her approach. Behind that strictness was an unwavering care. You are well, respected, admired and missed with great gratitude, Ms. Smith. God bless you. Rest peacefully.

“ I will always remember her kindred spirit. I was a student at the elementary school where she taught in Hallandale in the 1950's. She was not my teacher, but, I remembered her . Then our paths crossed again as adults. As adults we both worked at Orange Brook Elementary in Hollywood. It was a pleasure and an honor that our paths crossed again, as adults. We developed a friendship and repoire that I will always cherrish . My deepest sympathy to her family,
