“ Romie, In the tapestry of my life, your presence was a vibrant thread, weaving warmth and understanding into every moment. Before you were my partner, you were my confidant, embracing the wild symphony of my ideas with a grace that made them feel not just possible but inevitable. Your belief in our shared dreams transformed the ordinary into the extraordinary, and I'll forever cherish the echoes of laughter and shared excitement. Even in the realms of love, you remained the steadfast friend who lent an empathetic ear and a comforting presence. Your ability to nurture both my heart and my dreams spoke volumes of the extraordinary person you are. You never dismissed my ideas as foolish but illuminated the path to manifesting them, turning whimsy into tangible reality. As I attempt to encapsulate the essence of you, I find myself overwhelmed by the richness of our shared journey. The tapestry may have frayed, but the indelible mark of your friendship and unwavering support endures. You, Romie, are the architect of unforgettable moments and the muse of shared aspirations. I celebrate not just a past love, but an enduring friendship that transcends the boundaries of time and circumstance. And yet, the ache of longing persists, the wish for more time together echoing through my thoughts. Selfishly, I yearn for the days when your laughter filled the air, and your presence was a soothing balm for the challenges of life. Each day becomes a daunting challenge, and the promise of a brighter tomorrow feels elusive, as if the foundation of hope crumbles beneath me. I confess this with a sense of vulnerability because my whole life was intricately entwined with yours. Even with the aid of my glasses, the future appears blurred and uncertain without the clarity that your companionship provided. The struggle to see beyond the ache of your absence is real, and the yearning for your continued presence remains an unfulfilled wish. With heartfelt gratitude, enduring ache and in every beat of my heart, I love and miss you dearly.

“ Romie was one of those one in a million friends. I will miss the lil chit chat we shared most days,the laughter and all the jokes are no more.Let's find comfort in the fact that he's in no more pain and he's in a good place. I pray the Lord send his comforting angels to surround the family in this time of grief .
